Tis backed by an ivy luxuriantly evergreen, Hiding a cottage for lumber and coals, And numberless articles such as were never seen Elsewhere between the terrestrial poles. You perceive in these rhymes there is something eccentric, And your pardon I crave if that troubles you much, For Im partly compelled to resort to a pen-trick That twists the Queens English almost into Dutch. If I write about daffodils, snowdrops, and pansies, Moss-roses, carnations, and purple auriculas, And squeeze huge bouquets int a few stumpy stanzas, Then what can I do but say something ridiculous I presume twould amuse you to see me at work On my hobby, with every conceivable implement, My wife looking on with a smile and a smirk, The which I opine, to encourage is simply meant. For mine, you must know, is a...
